Making it Better...

The Heavy Constructors Association of the Greater Kansas City Area uses that motto with confidence.

You see, all the work our members do — whether it’s building roads and bridges, putting in water and sewer lines, constructing airport runways or doing site work for stadiums and shopping centers — has a common theme. All of it makes the quality of life better for the people who live and work in the Kansas City metro area. All that work shares something else, too — it all requires hard work by skilled and dedicated professionals.

What kind of professionals? Heavy construction is a complex industry requiring people from many different disciplines: degrees in civil engineering, business administration, and construction management are some of the most common that you'll find. The needs of the industry are much broader than that, however. People trained in mathematics, accounting, personnel management, commercial law, and public relations, to name a few other areas, also have vital roles.

The Heavy Constructors Association of the Greater Kansas City Area Industry Advancement Scholarships are specifically for people who are planning or preparing for a career in heavy construction. The amount of the scholarships is up to $2000 per academic semester ($4,000 per academic year).

Recipients MUST meet the following qualifications:
  - Be enrolled as a full time student.
  - Demonstrate a commitment to obtaining a career in heavy construction.

Preference will be given to scholarship applications received from:
  - College Freshman, Sophomores, Juniors or Seniors
  - Kansas City metro area residents
  - Children of construction industry employees, with additional preference given to those whose parents work for Heavy Constructors Association member companies.
  - Individuals who have a plan to seek summer employment in construction, with additional preference given to those whose summer employment has been or will be with a Heavy Constructors Association member company.
